SPECIAL PROJECTS

Daniel began mental health treatments when he was three years old due to behavioral challenges at preschool. He was diagnosed with an adjustment disorder and needed a school that offered services to address his needs for behavior modification treatment. A United Way funded program was able to provide Daniel's parents a case manager to help identify a school placement for him and explain their rights as part of the Individualized Education Plan Process. They expressed feelings of empowerment because of the support they received from their case manager. Thanks to the treatment plan, Daniel was prepared and ready for kindergarten.
